

Looking for Financial Assistance?

Disability Rights Florida does not provide direct financial assistance or credit counseling. However, we hope this list of resources will be helpful.

- Look in your local phone book under city, county and state governments to review available programs. Look also for charities and non-profits in your community. Another helpful list of government resources may be available at: <http://www.myflorida.com/directory>
- Contact the Florida Department of Children and Families (DCF). DCF has many programs that offer public assistance. Contact DCF directly to determine your eligibility for assistance. <http://www.dcf.state.fl.us/ess>
- Call your county help line. Every county has a help line and many areas of the state have a 2-1-1 help line. These services may connect you with community resources. An on-line map of help lines is available at: <http://flairs.org/membermap.htm>
- Read the Florida Public Service Commission's free booklet Where to Find Help in Florida. Request the booklet by calling 1-800-342-3552 or visiting this website. <http://www.psc.state.fl.us/publications/consumer/brochure/WhereToFindHelp.pdf>
- Learn about Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program at: <http://www.floridacommunitydevelopment.org/liheap/index.cfm>
- Consider using Free Consumer Credit Counseling offered by CredAbility: <http://www.cccsfl.org>
