Traumatic Brain Injury

How we can help individuals who have a TBI

Disability Rights
FLORIDA

What is a TBI?

- A Traumatic Brain Injury (TBI) is a blow, jolt to the head, or other head injury that disrupts the brain.
- Each year, over 1.5 million Americans experience a brain injury that could range from a brief loss of consciousness to a long-lasting coma.
- Regardless of severity, TBIs can affect a person's ability to function independently at home, at school, or in the workplace.
- The injury can affect many parts of a person's life: thinking, language, learning, emotions, behavior, and/or sensation.
- TBIs may also cause epilepsy and increase the risk of other brain disorders.

When you should contact Disability Rights Florida for help:

- You are experiencing discrimination because of a TBI.
- You are denied Medicaid, Brain and Spinal Cord Injury Program Services, TBI Waiver Services, or other state and federal benefits.
- If you need training to find a job or being denied accommodations in your job search or current job because of a TBI.
- Your child had a brain injury and is not doing well at school.
- You need housing accommodations, assistive technology or other types of service to live more independently or in the community.
- You need resources or information on assistive technology, or other types of services to live independently.
- You live in a facility and feel that your rights are being violated.
- You live in a facility and would like to live in the community.
- You or someone you know is in prison, jail, or another facility and is not getting medical or other services needed due to a TBI.
